

Use of Bouncy Castles

In respect of bouncy castles used by hirer's for children's parties, the party who is responsible for supervising the device is also responsible for insuring it, so if a hirer of the hall is supervising the inflatable, they must have their own public liability insurance to cover its use. The hirer may be covered under their household policy and if this is the case, they would just need to contact their insurer and get this confirmed in writing. If their household insurer does not cover their liability for this supervision, they would need to take out a one-off policy in respect of this, which could be obtained online. If the company from which the bouncy castle is being loaned is staying to supervise it, then they should have their own public liability insurance.

If you plan to use a bouncy castle you must provide the bookings secretary with a copy of your insurance. A hirer must not bring in a bouncy castle without your permission.
